in from migrants to refugees jill rosenthal tells the history of how rwandan migrants in a tanzanian border district became considered either citizens or refugees as nation state boundaries solidified in the wake of decolonization outlining the process by which people who have long lived and circulated across the rwanda tanzania border came to have a national identity rosenthal reveals humanitarian aid's central role in the ideological processes of decolonization and nation building from precolonial histories to the first rwandan refugee camps during decolonization in the 1960s to the massive refugee camps in the 1990s rosenthal highlights the way that this area became a testing ground for novel forms of transnational aid to refugees that had global implications as local and national actors refugees and international officials all attempted to control the lives and futures of refugee groups they contested the authority of the nation state and the international refugee regime this history rosenthal demonstrates illuminates how tensions between state and international actors divided people who share a common history culture and language across national borders

there is perhaps no aspect of the arab israeli conflict that is more complex and more emotionally charged than the problem of the palestinian refugees the atmosphere surrounding the discussion has led to confusion so that the facts have become unclear and the problems more difficult to treat this book first published in 1981 examines the complex interlocking issues that surround the topic of the palestinian refugees in the country that adopted most of them jordan this work tells the story of cambodians whose route takes them from refugee camps to california's inner city and high tech enclaves we see these refugees becoming new citizen subjects through a dual process of being made and self making balancing religious salvation and entrepreneurial values this work is intended to provide an in depth analysis of each and every provision of the 1951 convention and its 1967 protocol special contributions on topics that cut across various provisions or that provide an overview over developments in certain regions of the world complement this commentary ahsan ullah provides an insightful analysis of migration and displacement in the middle east and north africa he examines the intricate relationship of these phenomena with human rights safety concerns and issues of identity crisis and identity formation there has been little progress on the refugee problem because of official palestinian public positions other arab countries approach to the right of return of all palestinian refugees and the contrasting israeli public policy of not allowing any refugees to return to israel such polar opposite approaches can never resolve this difficult and longstanding humanitarian problem by working collectively the world s leading experts from arab countries the palestinian authority israel europe and the united states have developed a chessboard of proposed solutions the volume in part reflects the polarization that exists on the issue and in part moves away from the political slogans of both sides toward concrete proposals for negotiating a comprehensive agreement
